A REGIMENTAL HISTORY.

The Reunion of the Sixty-Ninth and Its Suggestion to Other Regimental Associations.

The proceedings of the reunion of the Sixty-ninth Indiana Infantry, held last year, and now printed in a pamphlet of thirty pages, contain a valuable suggestion to those who are holding regimental reunions this and subsequent years. The pamphlet not only contains the proceedings but the names and addresses of the survivors of the regiment as far as they could be ascertained, by companies. This, of course, involves no little labor, but how could it be better expended by a committee of each company than in keeping up the company roster? Following the roster is the address of Col. Oran Perry, who, as adjutant, and later as lieutenant-colonel, because of his continual presence with that notable regiment, could write its history. His address was the history of the regiment. It was directed to the hundreds of young people who attend the reunions. If the Sixty-ninth Indiana has no other written history, Colonel Perry's commendation would transmit its deeds to future generations. And Colonel Perry did not hold back the truth and leave the young people to assume that all the people in the North were patriots during the war. Therefore, the following words are found in the address:

But the hardest thing of all to bear was the fact that, while under such adverse circumstances we were grappling with a courageous, honorable enemy in front, our feet were being undermined by secret, cowardly foes in the rear. They were meeting in convention in the North, declaring the war a failure, were discouraging enlistments, resisting the drafts, refusing to vote supplies for the army, doing everything in their power to injure the credit of the government by decrying the greenbacks, and sending enlisted men into camps to persuade soldiers to desert. This "copperhead" history, my young friends; it may be entirely new to you, for there has been a strong effort of late years to suppress it.

Colonel Perry's address was fittingly finished with Meredith Nicholson's "The Soldier's Heart." Following the address is a mention of each member of the regiment who had died during the year by Adjutant Lacey; an original poem by Lieutenant Martin; "The Women in the War," by Miss Hammett, and last a glowing tribute to "The Indiana Soldier," by Capt. J. R. Jackson, of Union City—a tribute which is full of history and the eloquence of appreciation.

While such histories and regimental records cost some of its members much time and some money, they are invaluable as a part of the military history of Indiana, and in the years to come will be held as priceless heirlooms by the children and grandchildren of the men of Indiana who won imperishable fame in fighting to save the life of the Republic. What organizations are collecting these pamphlets and binding them? Some or all of them should see to it. The exposure of Dr. Webb and this pamphlet of the Sixty-ninth, two valuable documents for preservation published this year, should be bound with others as history.

Exposed to Small-Pox.

Dr. Metcalf yesterday received information from the Bureau of Immigration at New York, notifying him that one Everhardus Smit had arrived on the steamer Wendenham, on which a passenger had developed a case of small-pox. Smit's destination was Lafayette. The information was given for the purpose of allowing the local authorities to take whatever course they desire under the law. Dr. Metcalf notified the Lafayette Board of Health.

How Tax-Payers in Center Township

Fare Under the New Law.

More Transcripts from the Dupliques of 1890 and 1891—How Mining Company Raised Over a Million—Other Appraisements.

The list below continues the names of all tax-payers of Center township who owned the same property in the years 1890 and 1891. All names beginning with F and G are given, whether the taxes have been increased or decreased. Only those names are given where the property has not changed hands, or is greater or less in extent in one year than in the other, as where improvements have been placed on the land, or have been destroyed, or where part of the land has been sold, or more land purchased. No property in Indianapolis, West Indianapolis, Brightwood or Woodruff Place is included in this list, separate lists having been prepared for these municipalities:

DEATH RESULTS FROM A RUNAWAY.

John Ellis Fatally Injured by an Unmanageable Team of Horses.

John Ellis, living on Morris street, died at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. Vincent's Hospital from the effects of injuries received in a runaway accident at half past 6 in the morning. Ellis has been employed as a teamster by Noydke & Marmon for the past nine years. He very recently purchased a new team of horses and was driving them for the first time yesterday morning. He was on his way to his work and had nearly reached the Morris-street bridge over the river when the team frightened and became unmanageable. Ellis was thrown from the wagon, and his foot becoming entangled in the lines he was dragged a distance of about five hundred yards. When the team was finally stopped and Ellis released it was found that his left eye had been gouged out and his head terribly bruised. Powers & Murphy's ambulance was telephoned for and he was removed to St. Vincent's Hospital. Dr. Marree was called, and from the first expressed a doubt as to his recovery. Ellis was a married man, and leaves a wife and three children, who were dependent upon him for support.

A WOMAN KNOCKED DOWN.

Mr. McDonagh and His Divorced Wife Create a Sensation on Illinois Street.

About 8:30 o'clock last night a man and woman came by the Bates House corner walking on Washington street. Just as they reached the corner of Illinois and Washington street the woman was heard to make some remark and then strike the man in the face. They continued their journey east, and the man, who gave his name as M. J. McDonagh, says that the woman struck him twice before they had gone a half square further. Becoming exasperated at these frequent attacks he struck her a blow with sufficient force to render her insensible. She was picked up and carried into Sherb's drug store, where an effort was made to revive her. McDonagh, who was intoxicated, was arrested and taken to the police station. It was ascertained that the woman was his divorced wife, and has been following him lately and causing him considerable trouble, and that it was impossible for him to get rid of her. The husband of the woman where Mrs. McDonagh is staying, at No. 90 North New Jersey street, says that McDonagh came to the house last night and wanted Mrs. McDonagh to go out with him, which she finally consented to do.

Small Fire at King's.

About 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon an alarm of fire was sent in from Box 45, at King's pork-house. The department had but started to the scene in response to the alarm, when the tower watchman turned in an alarm. As soon as the department arrived a second alarm was sounded. The quick succession of the alarms from the box caused people on the streets to think that a big blaze might be expected. It proved to be, however, nothing more than some sheds and out-buildings to the west of the packing company. The loss will not exceed $200, covered by insurance. A section of the new Calahan hose burst at an inopportune moment.

Fell with the Elevator.

J. H. Jones, a married man, living with his family at 575 East Miami street, met with a painful and serious, but not necessarily fatal, accident at the warehouse of the Longstreet, Sherman & Tiegle, Oil Company, situated at the corner of Vermont street and the Bee-line railroad. He was taking a load from the fifth to the second floor in the elevator when the elevator fell. Jones had his left leg badly mangled and breast bruised. Flanner & Buchanan's ambulance was telephoned for and the injured man taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where Dr. Marree attended to his wounds. At a late hour last night he was resting easy and doing as well as could be expected.

About a Stand-Off.

Democrats may think they have a great advantage on account of the "Clayton and Fence Company" being located here, which is ready to furnish fences to politicians as well as to others, and does its own "wire-pulling." They forget that "Harrison" will most likely be a stockholder in the Home Brewing Company, since he found out that they brew the purest and most palatable beer known to the civilized world. This will benefit him more than Carnegie's Scotch whisky. Home Brew is bottled exclusively by J. C. Bos. Telephone 1669.
